A new chapter for Jonas and his craft

Most Worth Valley readers will recognise the name Daedalian, the bespoke furniture and cabinetmaking workshop that was located in the Brooks Meeting Mill (also known as Tankard's Mill) on Shaw Lane in Oxenhope for the past 15 years.

Daedalian's reputation was built on quality craftsmanship and expert design services. The signage still remains on the building but the business was dissolved in 2015 when its owners Jonas Hartley and Catherine Senior were faced with the daunting challenge of finding new premises and moving the workshop.

"The task was enormous and it forced us to re-evaluate our business and focus. In the end, Catherine and I decided to go in separate directions," explained Jonas.

One very positive outcome has been Jonas' commitment to continue to offer cabinetmaking and joinery services.

"I've always valued the one to one contact with clients and the feeling a part of the community. Some of the highlights over the years have included projects like making a lectern for the local Gardeners & Allotment Holders Association, supporting the Oxenhope Millennium Green project and providing studio space for 'Worth The Tour' artist, Vic Buta when he painted the giant mural that was displayed on Haworth Main Street for the Tour de France."

"I have appreciated the chance to take part in village life over the years and it has been a privilege to get to know so many lovely people in the valley, many of whom have become friends."

"Setting up on my own with significantly less overheads has given me the freedom to take on a variety of work and remain connected to the area. I'm just enjoying getting back to what I love and do best."

With 30 years experience working with wood, making beautiful furniture, doors, and cabinets, Jonas is right where he wants to be; back in his workshop.

No bake chocolate cake

Ingredients

200g Milk chocolate chips broken into pieces

100g Dark chocolate broke into pieces

I I 0g Butter (unsalted)

50g Unrefined dark muscovado sugar

110g Shortbread biscuits broken up

110g Glacé cherries

75g Hazelnuts whole, roasted

75g Pecan nuts roughly chopped

I Maltesers small pack, roughly chopped

Here is an easy recipe to keep the kids entertained in the kitchen. It is really more like a tray bake without the baking. You can add 'bits' like raisins or other dried fruit in addition to the glacé cherries. Enjoy!

Step 1 Melt the chocolate, butter and sugar in a bowl over a pan of simmering (not boiling) water or in a microwave oven.

Step 2 Stir in the rest of the ingredients.

Step 3 Turn into a 18cm round cake tin lined with non stick baking paper, pressing down gently. Leave to set at room temperature until firm.

Step 4 Once fully cooled and set, remove the cake from the tin and peel away the lining paper. Cut into thin slices and serve.

Prep time: 20 mins

Serves 12 Skill Level: Easy

Baking time: None!

Having an Easter Party?
- go on it's good to give thanks!

Are you having an Easter party? Have you ever had one? Why not?

Drip, drip, drip! The incessant sound of a miserable wet winter. Slate grey sky's and mud washed fields merge on a murky pennine horizon. And so that was this winter past, day after day after drip wet day! If ever we needed to be full of the joys of spring it's now. We have been through one of the worst wet winters most of us will have ever experienced.

Some will say "why celebrate? We have lost so much and are struggling to see a way forward"; so understandable for so many! Yet there is much to celebrate, the community spirit; the story after story of strangers coming together for the greater good and the love and humanity that shone through the darkest of times. Easter is about hope triumphing: even through death! It's about new life; creation awakening and nature bursting forth! It's time to give thanks for the fresh start, the new beginnings and the beauty of life, love and friendships. It's time for that party!

Keighley Worth Valley Railway: A Journey Back in Time

It's never easy running the railway, not least because a lot of what we work with is so old.

We restore and maintain a fleet of carriages that date back to the 1950s and 1960s and have a fleet of locomotives that includes one returning to traffic that is nearly 120 years old. In addition we can call on our partner organisations, with the Vintages Carriages Trust who run the Museum of Rail Travel based at Ingrow Station to provide a beautiful rake of more vintage carriages for our passengers to enjoy. There is also the Bahamas Locomotive Society, with their museum also at Ingrow, which includes the only steam engine owned by the National Trust that dates back to 1888.

Operating such an aged fleet of locomotives and carriages is what we are all about, offering our passengers a journey back in time through the beautifully restored stations, which are deserving of recognition in their own right. However, working with such venerable artefacts being challenges and our Winter Steam Gala is an example of this. Planning for such events takes many months. during which time we will be taking with other locomotive owners to try to source a visitor to the line to complement the home fleet and we will do all we can to bring into traffic any locomotives or carriages that are nearing the end of their overhaul. This February's event was no different, and we had two visiting engines lined up. One was actually our own locomotive (LMS Black 5 no 45212 for the enthusiasts amongst you) that is being overhauled by the same experts who have restored Flying Scotsman for the National a Railway Museum, so understandably that national treasure became their focus for the past few months, so ours couldn't be readied in time for a visit and operational circumstance conspired to prevent an alternative. The second planned locomotive's overhaul ran into delays, so that cancelled too, and to make matters worse our home-based locomotive number 75078 failed a routine inspection so is also unavailable.

The resourcefulness and tenacity of the event organising team has been amazing. Although they couldn't get the alternative locomotive that they hoped for, and the impact of the Boxing Day floods meant that we couldn't get locomotives in by road because of damage to the bridge at Haworth, they worked so hard to devise the timetable that included double-headed trains and demonstration freight services.

THE YOUNG WRITERS' CLUE

WHAT IS EARTH HOUR?

Have you ever heard of Earth Hour? No? Why not read on to find out? Earth Hour is a global celebration in aid of the environment. Businesses and individuals take part by turning off their electricity for an hour.

The first Earth Hour was held in Sydney, Australia in 2007. Involvement in the event has been growing ever since. Last year, 172 countries, 371 cities and 10.4 million people turned off their electricity to do their part for the environment.

We rang up local schools and large supermarkets to inform them about Earth Hour. We told them our school's (Stanbury's) plans for the event, which included turning off all the lights and other electrical appliances in school on the 17th March, as well as holding a fair trade breakfast on March 4th and wearing green or recycled clothes.

The thought of turning your electrical appliances off for an hour- such as your phone- is probably making you weak at the knees right now. But do you know what will actually happen if you don't?

Well, for starters, the electricity produced in power stations uses natural sources, some of which could take lots of years to replace. Fossil fuels are also used to make electricity, using items such as coal, oil or gas. It may surprise you but these will run out one day! By turning out all your lights or taking out your plugs before you go to school or work, you're preserving these so they will last a bit longer, meaning you won't have to face a future without Facebook.

Not only that, but you'll be saving yourself money by not having to pay such a huge electricity bill. You could spend the money on a holiday with your family or some new clothes!

So, why not join this global act at 8:30pm on Saturday 19th of March for one hour by turning your lights off and pulling all your plugs out. Why not have a fun family games night, or curl up with a good book under candlelight? You might find there is an actual world beyond your phone screen.

Earth Hour 2016 Toby's Tips for saving Energy

Switch off your mobile phones, computers and appliances when not in use.

Have a shower instead of a bath to save water.

When making a hot drink only boil the amount of water required, don't fill the kettle for one mug.

Make sure you use LED lights when possible.

Don't drive to work, cycle instead!

HEALTH BENEFITS

Golf is great exercise for people of all ages, It has be proven to have benefits for both the heart and lungs. In an average round of golf you will burn up to 721 calories, so its great exercise. Golf is a great way to exercise without the risk of injury. It has one of the lowest risks of injury across all sports in the UK.

SOCIAL BENEFITS

Golf is hugely popular across the UK and is a great place to meet new people. Many golf clubs have their own restaurants and bars for both club members and the public to enjoy. Clubs run many themed social events in their clubhouses throughout the year. Most clubs will hire out their function rooms on request to the public and represent good value for money.

COMPETITION

Golf is unique as an amateur sport as the handicap system allows players of all abilities to compete on a level playing field. Competitions can have as many as 150 people in them all competing against each other on the same day. The game can be enjoyed socially and competitively. There are many different formats: individual, pairs, teams and mixed gender events.

STRESS RELIEF

A round of golf can be a great way of reducing stress in our lives. It's nice to be outdoors in quiet natural surroundings with your friends.

KIDS

Golf is a fantastic sport for young people to take up, It teaches important life skills that will help them throughout life. Here are just a few: Determination, Self Confidence, Hand Eye Co ordination, Patience and Honesty. Clubs offer a safe environment for children to try a new sport and provide expert coaching. Junior golf is very well structured with coaching sessions and competitions available at clubs supervised by adults and golf professionals. Golf clubs are great places for kids to make new friends. There are many members of golf club who have been there since they were children and made life long friends.

But most importantly golf is just good fun.

CONCOCULATION WITH STEVE THORPE

It's not far from the start of the growing season; hopefully better weather is ahead.

We seem to have avoided any heavy snow but the rain fall has been relentless. This will heighten the need to get some goodness back into your soil, whether it be a lawn, flower or rose bed or your vegetable garden. Lots of vital elements and nutrients will have been washed from the soil by all the torrential rain.

If the soil is workable dig in a layer of well rotted manure in preparation for the growing season. Alternatively add a general fertiliser such as grow more, blood fish and bone or pelleted chicken manure. Add weed feed and moss killer to your lawns. This will kill any moss formed over the wet winter months and then aid vigorous growth in early spring. Once killed, thick moss might need removing by using a springbok rake or powered scarifier.

Now is the time to move any trees or shrubs that are either in the wrong place or have outgrown their current position. Plant new bare rooted trees, fruit trees and rose bushes. Remember rose bushes need regular feeding because they are very hungry plants and take a lot of goodness from the soil.

Prune existing roses to encourage vigorous new growth. Remove all dead, diseased and crossing wood and then prune at an angle to an outward facing bud.

Lift and divide any established perennials and plant new plants in any gaps or where needed.

Plant any summer flowering bulbs such as lilies and gladioli to give them the best possible start. Start chitting your early seed potatoes ready for planting out later in the month. Stand in egg boxes or seed trays and place in a light, dry, frost free place to aid shoot growth. Onion sets can be bought and planted out doors this month.

Sowing times will start now and run throughout April depending on what you are growing. By delaying sowing for a few weeks many seeds can be sown directly out into their final growing position.

Get out in the garden, get growing and get healthy. We will all feel much better when we see the mass of colours from all the spring bulbs.

15 YEARS & COUNTING

Rebecca Marshall of Haworth Physio is celebrating her 15th year in the sport health industry working as a physical therapist in the Worth Valley. It was 2001 when Rebecca began her career in a part time position for the NHS whilst at the same time working hard to build her private practice. It took another five years to get established and grow to the point where Rebecca was comfortable going fully on her own.

2004-2010 was an expansive time when Rebecca began to teach pilates as well as train workers in manual handling. This was also the time frame for an installation of a small private gym in the space above Rebecca's treatment room at the practice on Haworth Main Street.

By the time the 10 year anniversary rolled around a re-design of the company logo and a celebration was in order; invitations extended to the growing client list.

It was 2012 when Rebecca completed the Bob Graham Round, a 66 mile, 27,000 ft circuit of 42 of the highest peaks in the English Lake District within 24 hours; a testing ground for the supremely fit. Rebecca did this with the aim of raising funds for the local hospice, Manorlands, and contributed £1,300 to that worthy facility following her successful comlpetion of the race.

2014 saw the excitement of the Tour de France roll through the district and Rebecca was keen to show her support for the sport as well as Manorlands once again. She offered sports massages to the atheletes and was disappointed when elite cyclist Mark Cavendish was unable to take her up on the offer due to his early exit from the race that year.

Positve about the future of her practice, Rebecca remains dedicated to her profession and available to support people from all walks of life in their efforts to improve their mobility and fitness.

Rebecca treats a variety of clients, from champion european triatheletes to regular members of the public suffering with arthritis and other debilitating conditions; Rebecca also provides post and pre op support and advice.

Back and joint pain continue to be two of the most frequently mentioned ailments brought to Rebecca's clinic. With a regular course of treatment, including strengthening exercises, these problems can usually be alleviated. As Rebecca often states, "The pain won't just go away, call me today!" We suggest you do just that!

As an incentive to book your treatments this month and in celebration of Haworth Physio's 15th anniversary, you can enjoy this special offer: 5 sessions for the price of 4.

OAKWORTH WOMEN SHARE GOOD WILL & CHARITY IN LESBOS

Oakworth friends Jane Arnold and Maggie Higson lend a helping hand in a Lesbos warehouse when they traveled to the Greek Island to support independent efforts to alleviate the migrant crisis.

What made you decide to volunteer?

We had been watching the news with growing unease about the plight of the refugees fleeing from war and persecution in Syria and surrounding areas, and as Europeans were concerned that the Greek people who are already struggling with a severe financial crisis, and especially the residents of the Aegean Islands who were bearing the brunt of the unprecedented numbers of displaced people migrating.

What kind of work were you doing?

With 10 days notice we booked a flight and hotel, and arrived in the capital Mytilene on 14th January. We quickly established our routine. We worked each morning sorting clothing and aid in a large warehouse just outside the capital, in the afternoons we walked to the refugee camp and helped serve hundreds of meals in order to provide a hot food to the refugees daily. This was followed by a mammoth washing up session. In the evenings we distributed extra warm clothing, chocolate and fruit to the refugees in the harbour as they boarded the 8 pm ferry for Athens from where they embarked on their trek through Europe.

What were your thoughts on encountering the plight of the refugees at first hand?

We were especially struck by the resilience and optimism of the refugees, who told us of their harrowing and hazardous crossings in overloaded leaking inflatable dinghies, whole families with both small children and elderly people travelling together, many who could not swim and were clearly terrified. They literally arrived on Lesbos with the clothes on their back and a rucksack, others with barely a bin liner of belongings. The seas were rough in January, the weather cold and windy, and still they kept crossing.

What were your impressions of the situation on the Greek Islands?

We were also humbled by the welcome provided by the islanders. We spoke to local Greek volunteers, hotel staff, shopkeepers, waiters, bus and taxi drivers and never heard a single word against the refugees. The people of Lesbos are incredibly kind and are desperately worried about their own futures but are nevertheless supporting the refugees wherever possible. We would urge anyone who has not yet planned a summer holiday, if you intended going abroad, please consider Lesbos, it's a beautiful island where you will receive a warm welcome, whilst at the same time supporting the Greek people who are on the front line of the crisis.

This spring learn how to reinvigorate your home

Most people have an armchair in the attic that has been patiently waiting for its day to be dusted off and lovingly restored. It probably belonged to a great aunt or a granny, and comes with a cherished narrative; a myriad of memories crammed into its very fibres. All it needs is a bit of TLC and some time set aside to revive it, bring it back to life and give it a renewed pride of place in the home.

So here is the nudge you've been waiting for...Just do it; join one of the classes at Damside Mill this spring and get going with that project that has been niggling you for years. Whether a precious heirloom chair or a funky lamp you retrieved from a skip, get your creative juices flowing and enjoy the pleasure of working with your hands. You will bring your ideas to fruition under the careful tutelage of Pauline Keenoy, former Leeds College of Art lecturer and restoration queen with more than 20 years experience. Pauline runs a number of courses from Damside. You can choose evening or weekend classes to suit your schedule. Weekly courses: W/C March 1st to W/C 18th April. W/C 25th April to W/C 30th May.

Weekend upholstery courses -

23rd - 24th April, 21st - 22nd May & 25th - 26th June.

Saturday Lampshade Making - 7th May.

Yorkshire

by Stuart Lawson Beattie Skipton Poets Guild

Gods' Own County This, is Yorkshire, Where the leaves fly free, And the hush of the beck Is heaven to me. Willows, wallow, I swallow. Winds gather, heather sways. I thank God, I'm here For all, my days! Rocks, huddle, Lovers, cuddle Cos, that's they way it is, Yorkshire, is Bliss! If I ever left. T'would leave me alone, bereft! For I will never leave! I Love, this web, we weave! Valleys, Rivers, Cliffs, Green trees, Roll, forever, on this, Yorkshire Breeze! Yorkshire, Gods' Own County, This hallowed place, My Home! Yorkshire, Gods' Own County, Where the Blessed.

Yorkshire Rose is sewn!
